Woman survives head-on wreck with dump truck

Garmon's father says daughter stable, improving every day

A Lawrenceburg woman remained hospitalized Monday after the mini-van she was driving was struck head-on by a dump truck Friday afternoon. Marie Garmon, 43, was travelling toward Lawrenceburg on Versailles Road when a dump truck headed toward Versailles locked up its brakes to avoid a car stopping in front of it, swerved into Garmon's lane and struck her car. The collision drove Garmon's car into a rock wall near the entrance of Starhill Way, pinning her inside. She remained hospitalized Monday at the University of Kentucky Medical Center, where she was flown by helicopter following the accident.

Her father, Jerry Crawford, said she's improving. "She's in stable condition and improving every day," Crawford said Monday morning. "They're still doing a bunch of tests, but so far it's been good." Anderson County Fire Chief Mike Barnes said it took firefighters nearly an hour to cut Garmon from the vehicle.

City council raises property tax rates 3.4 percent

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

The city council unanimously approved a compensating tax rate at its Sept. 10 meeting for the 2012-2013 fiscal year, a 3.4 percent increase from last year. In 2011 the city council approved the maximum 4 percent revenue increase, a 6.6 percent tax hike for taxpayers at $1.78 per $100,000. Real property assessments for the city dropped by about $1.4 million since last year, according to Anderson County property valuation data. The compensating rate, at $1.84 per $1,000 assessed value, would add $6 to every tax bill per $100,000 assessed value and garner about $38,000 more in revenue for the city than the flat tax. Maintaining a flat tax rate at $1.78 will produce

$1.03 million in real and personal property revenue for the city, about $20,000 more than the city budgeted for revenue. The council, which already approved its $3.156 million budget for the upcoming fiscal year in May, projected needing $1.01 million in property tax revenue for 2012-13. The compensating rate would generate $1.07 million in both real and personal property tax revenue, and the 4 percent revenue increase would produce $1.082 million. City clerk Robbie Hume said the city council historically doesn't examine the flat tax rate when looking at tax rate options, and that the compensating rate and 4 percent revenue increase are examined because they are thresholds for calculating rates. "I don't think we've ever compared the flat rate, historically," Hume said. "The tax calculations are always based on compensating and

Middle school student charged for 'hit list'

Police say district allowed suspect to ride bus to school before arrest

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

A male Anderson County middle school student was arrested last Wednesday morning as he exited his school bus and charged with 32 felony counts of terroristic threatening for possessing a "hit list." According to School Resource Officer Joe Saunier, the "hit list" contained the names of 32 Anderson County middle school students. Because of privacy concerns, Saunier could not release the name of the student or describe what hit list entailed other than that it listed students' names. The middle school student did not have any weapons when he was taken into custody, Saunier said. Acting police chief Chris Atkins said it was ultimately the school administration's decision, with input from city law enforcement, to allow the suspect to ride the school bus Wednesday morning. "Looking at the situation, our school resource officer has interacted with this

Four Roses toasts new visitor center

50,000 expected to visit new facility

Raising glasses of single barrel bourbon, Four Roses Distillery staff, as well as state and local public officials and bourbon enthusiasts, toasted the completion of the Anderson County distillery's multi-million dollar visitor center at its grand opening Sept. 10. CEO Hideki Horiguchi said in 2004, Four Roses Distillery attracted only 1,000 visitors. This year, however, the distillery will be anticipating more than 50,000 tourists walking through its doors. "This visitor center will literally be a foundation in success ... for years to come," Horiguchi, who added the distillery has grown by 35 percent every year since 2004, said. The grand opening, which took place on the eve of the opening day of the Kentucky Bourbon festival, featured speakers such as Lawrenceburg Mayor Edwinna Baker, Anderson County Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway, Kentucky Department of Tourism Commissioner Michael Mangeot, Kentucky Distiller's Association President Eric Gregory and Chief Operating Officer John Rhea. Mangeot said the bourbon industry's growth has fueled the Kentucky tourism industry over the last five years, raking in more than $2 billion and employing more than 9,000 workers. "Bourbon is good economic development for Kentucky," he said. Gregory agreed. "Bourbon is not just a drink anymore," Gregory said. "It's a culture and a family." "Four Roses is a gem on the Kentucky Bourbon Trail." Four Roses Master Distiller John Rutledge, who has more than 45 years of experience in the bourbon industry and has been the master distiller at Four Roses since 1995, hand drew limited-edition single barrel bourbon for a collective toast to the center. The limited-quantity bourbon will be for sale in the visitor center gift shop as long as supplies last, according to a press release from the distillery. As Rutledge and Mangeot snipped the rose garland ribbon at the entrance to the visitor center, rose petals exploded from small, confetti cannons on either side of the center's front entrance and showered guests. The $2.4 million two-phase project began two years ago, first by constructing 9,000 square feet in office space for distillery employees, and then completing a renovation of its 5,000 square foot visitor center. According to a press release from Four Roses, the new visitor center features two bourbon tasting bars, a distillery gift shop with antique bottles and vintage advertising on display, as well as the new, separate office space for marketing, sales and administrative employees at Four Roses. Whiskey Magazine named Four Roses Distillery "American Distiller of the Year" in 2011, the second consecutive and third time in five years the distillery received the award, the press release said.

4 percent revenue [increase]." Each of the countywide taxing districts, including fiscal court, school board, fire, health, library and Extension, voted earlier this summer to keep their tax rates flat or lower them. Each, however, benefitted from tens of millions of dollars of expansion at Wild Turkey Distillery, which is outside of city limits and does not figure into the city's overall tax base. Hume also confirmed that the city's budget for the upcoming fiscal year was calculated based on the compensating rate. The city's finance committee met for little more than five minutes on Sept. 5 before deciding to recommend the compensating rate to the city council. Council member Steve Rucker said since the budget was figured based on the compensating rate, that would be the option he would recommend to the council. "I think it's important to note that the assessment on real and personal [property taxes] has gone down," Sandy Goodlett, council member and finance committee chair, said. The council also unanimously approved its motor vehicle tax, which is fixed at $2.99 per $1,000 assessed value and will produce $126,682 in revenue. A special-called meeting to approve a second reading of the tax rate will be held on Sept. 17 at 4 p.m. at city hall.

Other business

The council voted to accept a $77,100 bid from Insituform Technologies of Chesterfield, Mo., to replace 3,000 feet of slip lining in sewer rehabilitation in the city. Public Works Director Larry Hazlett said about 1,800 feet of slip lining would be replaced in the Glenview subdivision, and the rest in several different areas around town. Because the bid came in low and the company charges by the foot, Hazlett said the city may add on some more sewer rehab for city residents depending on additional cost. family before, knew he had no access to weapons, knew there was no immediate danger," Atkins said. "He was under surveillance on the school bus. There was no danger to anyone on that bus or at that school or we would have done things different." Atkins said he could not elaborate what kind of surveillance was used. Eunice Land, mother of seventh grader Clayton and sixth grader Whitney Land, said she first heard about the hit list over the middle school's public address system late Thursday afternoon. "Very concerned," Land said upon hearing the announcement. "I was really listening." Land said she wasn't upset about learning about the hit list a day after the student was arrested Wednesday morning. "If they thought it was a very serious situation, they would have notified us," she said. "I believe in [Anderson County Middle School Principal] Ms. Fultz that much." Leigh Ann Isaac, mother of sixth grader Katie, is no stranger to hit lists. While attending a Fayette County middle school, Isaac's son became the target of a fellow student's hit list.

Fultz

"So when I heard that this morning, I thought, 'Oh, hear we go again. It must be a middle school thing,'" Isaac said. Although Isaac said she thought the district did a better job than Fayette County in handling the juvenile and working with law enforcement, she wished middle school administrators had contacted all parents earlier. Isaac said after contacting parents with students involved, the administration should have notified all parents immediately after either through the One Call system — which sends voicemail alerts en masse to parents — or by sending a letter home. "Any time something happened in Fayette County ... there was a letter that day," Isaac, who said via e-mail that she explicitly trusts the Anderson County school district staff to keep her daughter safe on a daily basis, said. "I think when you let a day go by, it raises suspicion about your motivation." "I think it just gives parents a better level of confidence that you are handling it, that there is full disclosure." Middle school Principal Gina Fultz said since the investigation was still ongoing, she wanted to wait until she had all of the information for all parents. "At no time was anyone in danger or in harm's way," Fultz said Thursday afternoon. "I take very seriously the confidentiality and privacy of all of our students." Superintendent Sheila Mitchell said in an e-mail that parents were notified immediately following the conclusion of the investigation, and at the conclusion of the school day. She stated the district responded to the situation quickly, considering the large number of students involved. "We felt it very important to notified parents of students involved by phone to ensure parents had accurate information and answer questions," Mitchell said via e-mail. "Student safety is our No. 1 priority." School administrators, according to Saunier, learned of the hit list during a middle school football game on Tuesday, Sept. 5. Fultz and ssociate middle school principal and athletic director Tammy Gilkison notified Saunier and administrators and city law enforcement worked into early morning Wednesday to identify the student responsible for the hit list. "It speaks volumes to have the administrators and school resource officer working at midnight and beyond trying to identify the juvenile who made this list," Atkins said Thursday morning. According to statue, the suspect will never be allowed to return to the middle school, but Saunier said a judge could allow him to attend the district's alternative school, be home schooled, or choose an alternative form of schooling. "It was a very extended extrication," Barnes said. "It was one of the most difficult I've been presented with in my 30-some years of responding to accidents. "It was very, very labor intensive and involved. The tools we were using are extremely heavy. It was almost like trying to do surgery with big hydraulic tools."

Barnes

Barnes said a quick response from Carey's Towing was a key to getting Garmon removed from her vehicle.

"[Owner] Eddie Carey got there double-quick and got the dump truck out of way because we couldn't get to her," Barnes said.

Garmon's mini-van was mangled following the collision, which pushed the steering wheel and speedometer into the passenger side and left her lower body pinned beneath multiple layers of twisted metal.

Firefighters used hydraulic cutting tools to first remove the van's roof followed by small sections of the metal that had her trapped.

The 1997 International dump truck was driven by Eric D. Jenkins of Hustonville, according to the Kentucky State Police, which is investigating the accident.

Anderson County Director of Public Safety Bart Powell said Jenkins was transported to an area hospital with non-life threatening injuries.

Crawford, Garmon's father, said the family has received an outpouring of concern about her condition.

"Everyone has been so nice," Crawford said.

Asked if the family needs anything, Crawford said, "We've got more than we need. If someone wants to do something, tell them to take some food to the food pantry in Marie's name."

Also responding to the scene were the Anderson County Sheriff's Office, Lawrenceburg Police Department, Lawrenceburg Fire Department and the Kentucky State Police, which is investigating the wreck.

Barnes said county firefighters extracted Garmon from her vehicle while EMS provided medical assistance. He said city firefighters pitched in by establishing a landing zone at Bluegrass Energy for the helicopter.

"Everyone in town was involved in the accident," he said.

Skid marks on Versailles Road show the distance a dump truck slid before colliding with a mini-van Friday afternoon. The wreck remains under investigation by the Kentucky State Police.

Wreck jams traffic on Wildcat Road

Although traffic concerns certainly pale during such a serious accident, traffic nevertheless became a story of its own late Friday afternoon when a woman's car was hit head-on by a dump truck on Versailles Road.

Cars trying to cross the Kentucky River into Lawrenceburg eventually were backed up as far as Falling Springs in Versailles.

Cars headed from Lawrenceburg to Versailles backed up before eventually being rerouted to the Bluegrass Parkway.

Then there were those who attempted to utilize Wildcat Road, the steep, winding county road that connects Tyrone to Harrodsburg Road in Stringtown.

Wildcat Road, which turns into a one-lane gravel road for just over a mile, became clogged at both ends when cars trying to get from Tyrone to Harrodsburg Road were met by an Anderson County school bus headed the opposite way.

The bus was forced to stop on a steep downhill grade in the one-lane section, and could not back up due to a stalled station wagon behind it.

By then, cars headed toward Harrodsburg Road were backed up at least a mile into Tyrone. Those behind the school bus attempted to back their way about a half mile around the narrow, treacherous curves to turn around.

Handling of hit list a lesson for district

Roughly 36 hours. That's how long it took from the time police took into custody a middle school student suspected of creating a hit list before school officials determined it was OK for you to know about it.

That's inexcusable. When something this serious happens, the district should set aside this pervasive and somewhat odd desire it has developed of late to control every ounce of information that gets out and simply let people know what's going on.

Here's how it went down. On Tuesday officials get word of a hit list, and work nearly overnight with police to find its suspected creator.

The suspect arrives to school on a bus Wednesday morning, is taken into custody and charged with 32 felony counts of terroristic threatening.

The media catch wind of the charges Thursday morning, and stories here and in Lexington are posted on websites and broadcast throughout the day.

It's not until the district and school offices are closed for the evening (hardly a coincidence) that the public is notified, and then only by yet another of the district's incessant — and frequently unnecessary — automated phone messages.

And they wonder why people are upset?

When we first approached a principal Thursday afternoon, she wasn't particularly happy that we and other media outlets found out about the hit list because, she said, it was still under investigation.

Of course it is, but the fact that a person, even a minor, has been charged with a crime is public information, whether the district likes it or not.

And, like it or not, people within, around and outside of the school district are going to start talking, particularly when something as disturbing as a hit list is uncovered.

That's going to be news every time, and the sooner the district can wrap its head around that fact, the better off its officials, and the people paying them, will be.

Consider how this should have been done, and the benefit to all involved.

Had the district led from the front on this, alerted the media, sent out a pre-recorded phone message, and assured the public that the children were safe, the district could have looked professional, responsible and in total control of a tough situation.

The public, instead of getting information in dribs and drabs, would have been spared any concerns that surfaced and not had to worry about their family members inside that building.

Sometimes even school districts need to be taught a lesson. Let's hope they've learned it.

While on this subject, please know that we aren't going to quibble with the district over semantics. Its take is that the suspect wasn't "arrested" doesn't fly with us, because when anyone, child or adult, is charged with 32 felonies, that person is under arrest.

Nor are we going to quibble over him being taken into custody vs. the preferred term "protective custody."

Another complaint we've heard is that the child was allowed to ride a school bus after being identified as the creator of the hit list.

The short answer is that school officials have much more authority on than off school property, and that taking the child into custody there was much easier.

Those concerned should also know that the Lawrenceburg police were watching the bus closely, and weren't about to let the child do anything bad before arriving to school.

Giving during tough times

The art of selfless giving is hard to master. Especially in 2012.

At this same time last year, then-high school junior Blake Roach promised himself that he'd pursue his mission to erect a 9/11 memorial in front of the Anderson County high school, even if he didn't make his promised groundbreaking deadline of Sept. 11, 2011.

That deadline long gone, Blake said he hopes he can just see this project through until more final deadline — his graduation in May.

Blake's original sketch and plan for the memorial had to be scrapped because of building costs.

He said he's happy with the simplified compromise — a 5-foot tower made of mountain stone inset with a brass plaque — but not happy with the lack of response.

"It makes me realize what this country's coming to, that's for sure," the now-high school senior said.

Instead of last year's hope, I heard disappointment in Blake's voice, a sense of frustration in understanding why it was so difficult to raise money for a good cause.

"If it was up to me, [the memorial] would be up tomorrow, or this afternoon," Blake said, laughing.

He's not the only one. Charitable institutions — religious, non-profit and higher education entities — have all suffered, much like everyone else since the onset of the recession.

According to a June 2012 report from the Chronicle of Higher Education, charitable giving in the United States is 11 percent less than what was given back in 2007. Religious institutions suffered the most, given the direct decline of church membership, and charitable giving to development and relief work overseas only grew a fraction from last year.

"Cutting back," I guess, includes cutting back on giving back.

Blake's attempt to fund a 9/11 memorial isn't the only example of a lack of giving.

It's to the point where our school children have to hawk products in order to go on field trips and receive playground equipment.

Where once-flush charities and non-profits must practical-

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Lower speed, safer drivers needed on dangerous Versailles Road

To the editor:

I am writing out of concern for a growing problem in the eastern end of Anderson County.

Specifically, I am referring to the ever-growing amount of apparent careless driving that is occurring just east of city limits in the stretch Versailles Road that runs between the entrance of Hunter Ridge subdivision through the area near the Wild Turkey Distillery.

Not too many months ago two lives were lost in a tragic head-on collision near Lock Road. It's hard to say how many lives were affected by the loss of these two lives.

Just this past Friday afternoon another horrific collision occurred near the entrance of Starhill Way.

These are but two public reminders of the dangerous stretch of highway that is heavily traveled on a daily basis.

For those of us who live in or near this area, there are many other accounts of near misses that the public likely never hears about.

My family and I have lived in the Versailles Road area for approximately 35 years. It's a great place to live in many ways; as it's near city limits but far out enough to feel as though you have a little bit of privacy.

Furthermore, being as close as we are to Woodford County, a trip to Lexington is just minutes away.

However we are growing more and more weary of traveling to and from our homes each day. Years ago, my mother was rear-ended by a dump truck as she was waiting to turn into her driveway. This accident resulted in some lasting back and neck injuries, but could have been worse.

Although my wife and I have been fortunate thus far in that we haven't been in any accidents, we have had our share of near misses. On more than one occasion I've had people pass me on the passenger side of the road as I'm turning into mine or my parents' driveway. For those of you who know the area, you probably realize that means someone is actually getting off the pavement and into the grass just to pass us instead of waiting for us to turn.

I have also had a few occasions in which I've had to accelerate instead of turning in to either of the aforementioned driveways because the vehicle coming up behind me is going so fast that they would plow into me had I not done so.

The last time this occurred, my child, who was in the back seat, became very frightened by the action of us having to accelerate so quickly and due to the screeching tires of the car rapidly approaching us from behind. My mother has even had other vehicles pass her on her left as she's attempting to turn left into her own driveway. Had she not been paying attention, she would have turned directly into the other vehicle.

These are only a few instances of accidents or near misses in the Versailles Road area just outside of city limits. My guess is that many of my neighbors, as well as the residents of Starhill Estates and Macland Road, could recount similar instances in their own lives. As with nearly every residential area in Anderson County, these areas are populated with families both young and old, as well as a number of businesses. Ultimately, they are all potential victims of what is seemingly an increasing amount of careless driving.

Accidents happen every day and often times there are no ways to prevent such things from occurring. However, I would like to see more done to ensure the safety of the many passengers who travel Versailles Road (and any other road for that matter) on a daily basis. I believe it starts with individual drivers. Please, for the sake of your own safety and of those around you, pay attention to the simple task of operating your vehicle. By the time you're well into adulthood, driving becomes second nature and something many of us take for granted. We seem to forget that we are operating a few thousand pounds at an accelerated speed of what should be no more than 55 mph (at least in the area I have written about).

A minor miscalculation can lead to tragedy in mere seconds.

Please check your speed in residential areas. Please watch for other vehicles that could be braking at some point or another. Please use turn signals and in doing so, give those around you enough time to respond.

I also would like to see the speed limit changed in the area I have referred to in this letter to 45 mph, as well as the placement of more caution signs that would hopefully trigger more drivers to be aware of the dangerous curves and hills on this short stretch of highway. Furthermore, I would like to see the area patrolled more often by county and state law enforcement.

I know those individuals have many areas to patrol and many other duties that take up their workdays. However, I would think that the recent trends in accidents may merit some attention in this area.

Before closing, I will leave you with one last image that I witnessed from my front yard within the last month. As I was tending to some outdoor chores, I heard the sounds of engines racing in the distance. My initial thought was that it might be some emergency vehicles responding to an accident. Taking notice, however, I was shocked to witness two passenger vehicles race by our house toward Lawrenceburg.

These two vehicles were side-by-side, with multiple passengers, and (by my estimate) travelling approximately 60 to 65 mph as they neared the downward hill just past Starhill Way.

Had another vehicle been approaching from the direction of Lawrenceburg, we would have experienced yet another tragic accident in this area.

Questions posed for ECC building sale detractor

Editor's note: The following is in response to an article in last week's paper that included comments on the sale of the old Early Childhood Center by Ed Ruggles.

To the editor:

I agree with Mr. Ruggles that it would not be good to have another tax increase of any kind. However, Mr. Ruggles, what would people here in Anderson County who elected the board like to see done with the ECC building?

Would you like to see it sit empty for few years? Maybe a flea market? Maybe a hangout for teenagers at night to get into trouble?

Maybe somewhere on the seven acres that drug deals could happen?

Could you tell me of another school in which most of the children live in Anderson County, most of the teachers are in this area, and the head of our school is the Lord Jesus Christ?

Who, after years of praying answered the teachers', parents' and students' prayers so we would have a school building of our own. We went through the process when the ECC sealed bid was turned in and our bid was accepted by the board. Again, the head of our school was on the job. The Lord Jesus Christ answering our prayers. No other bids where turned in.

Now, Mr. Ruggles, I have a question for you. Which would you rather see, and I quote "Seventy-five thousand dollars pennies on the value" or shabby old building?

My name is Naomi Ruth Dunn and I am proud to have a grandson that has been attending Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg from kindergarten and he is in ninth grade. CAL is proud to be in the old ECC building and I know that our headmaster Mr. Carmichael invites anyone to come and tour our school.

We have been blessed.

Time to consider what to grow indoors

Fall begins Saturday but those of you with allergies already knew that because your nose knows. I really feel for those who suffer because you just can't escape the air. You can take a tablespoon of honey every day to help drastically reduce your suffering. Eating local honey builds up your tolerance to everything blowing in the wind. It takes four to six weeks to kick in, so you better start soon if you want any relief in October. I can't believe I'm already talking about October. It will be here before we know it. I do my canning in September and start putting everything to bed in October, right after I harvest the broccoli. So, this is the time that I get to roam the farm during the week, picking and putting all those little things that never seem to rise to the top of the to-do list. The dogs love this time of year. Tiller is especially adventurous. She loves to bulldoze her way through the tall brush sniffing for critters. For those of you who haven't noticed, the stick tights are out. These little triangle seed pockets stick like Velcro to anything it brushes against. My beautifully red golden retriever came out of the brush last week looking like a chocolate lab. It took an hour to brush her out. I usually put the brushed dog hair around my plants, but this stuff goes directly into the trash because it's filled with seed. Spanky, my cattedog/hound dog hybrid has blissfully short hair. Ironically, prefers clear ground and water for her exploring. The roaming around the farm gives me an opportunity to see what wildflowers are blooming. I like to mark them with hot pink ribbon and then gather the seeds in late fall. That way I can plant or scatter the seeds where I want them. Between Mother Nature and Tiller, I scatter a lot. Every year, after I close the stand, I head to the grocery to stock up for winter. I buy the same stuff every year. This year, when I got to the check out I was shocked at the total. It was $30 more than normal, and I buy the cheap stuff. That said, if you have ever wanted to try growing things inside over the winter, this might be the year for you to jump in with both feet. The hanging florescent lights, hooked up to a timer will allow you to grow a few things. Lettuce and greens are easy. Tomaatoes and beans, not so easy, but you should have some already canned in the pantry. Every year I try something new to grow over the winter. This year I'm going for fruit, since it is so expensive. I'm taking a cutting from my hardy kiwi to try and get it to fruit this winter. It's probably crazy, but it will be fun to watch. I'm also doing carrots again, but this year I'm using the lights instead of the window sill. Keeping the lights on for 10 hours and the room warm is the expensive part. At least I'll get to play in the dirt without freezing my tail off. Now get those chores done. Start winterizing the outdoor equipment, and bleach cleaning your gardening tools and pots. Oil up those shovels and hoes. I wouldn't put the hoses up yet though. Your trees will need a regular drink to prepare for winter and we'll have plenty of warm weather to get through before that arrives. Until then, lets enjoy the sunshine. Happy growing.

ly beg people so that their services can continue. Everyone has the right to prioritize their giving and to whom or what they give. But before anyone jumps to the conclusion that "the economy" created heightened selfishness, I think it's best to remind ourselves of how much people in the Anderson County community do give. Members of the community rallied around the family of Cody Ramsey following his death, most recently with a tractor and truck tug in the county park. Hundreds of people attend and walk for Relay for Life each year.

It would be incorrect to say that charitable giving in Anderson County has come to an end. David Montgomery, of the non-profit food bank Open Hands, said the food pantry has seen a little bit of a decline in terms of monetary donations, but he couldn't say anything bad about Anderson County people helping out. "But we're still making our bills, stuff like that. We're doing pretty good. Yeah, it has declined a little bit, but Anderson County is tremendous about helping out, helping others," Montgomery said. Although Blake was disappointed in the overall fundraising response, he only needs $600 to complete his project. That must mean someone, somewhere, is still giving back despite what the economy has taken away. Comment at theandersonnews.com or follow staff writer Meaghan Downs on Twitter at @ANewsM-Downs.

A response to Carlson, Hawkins

To the editor:
This is in response to a portion of Ben Carlson's column in last week's paper, as well as a letter from Darren Hawkins. Although I'm not a union member nor have I ever been, my dad was a carpenter and a life-long member of the AFL-CIO. The union served our family well, and the benefits it was responsible for bringing to construction workers helped our family through some rough times. Although you take quite a bit space re-counting some negative union events, you fail to balance your comments with tales of companies who did the same and worse to it's employees.

As a modern day Democrat I can assure that I, along with millions of others, are not on a "march from Capitalism to Socialism." Perhaps you might do a story on what socialism and capitalism truly are, and what aspects of our society are socialistic, and are also elements no rational person would want to change. I don't suggest all companies/corporations are bad, nor are all unions good, however you might consider that unions brought us the following (all things the "modern day Republicans" would probably love to eliminate):
Weekends
Paid vacations
FMLA
Sick leave
Minimum wage
Eight-hour work day
Overtime pay

Child labor laws
40-hour work week
Workmen's comp
Americans With Disabilities Act
Employer health insurance
Laws ending sweatshops in the US
... and many, many more
The only war on women being waged in this country is the political platform of the Republican Party. In her letter last week, Karen Richardson brings us her election year PR piece on the latest Republican candidate, extolling all of her great virtues, but fails to provide one example of all the wonderful things she has done. And lastly, I'd suggest Mr. Hawkins double check his history books in regards to Christ in the public square. Nowhere in The Constitution is "God" or "Christ" mentioned. The Declaration of Independence (a document who's purpose was to sever our nations ties with England) uses the term Creator, which is not specific to any religion. Mr. Hawkins might read Thomas Jefferson's Danbury letters to see his feelings on the separation of church and state. Religion is a personal thing. The Consitution dictates that there shall be no religious test to hold government office (Article VI of the Constitution). Has Mr. Hawkins considered that his Christian statement that upon his death that he will "live in an unimaginable paradise," is the same statement that a Muslim makes upon their death? We are a melting pot of religions in the US. Which one is the truth? Religion belongs in the home, and in the churches, not in government or the public schools.

Fiscal court cracks down on business licenses

Dozens of businesses turned over to county attorney for refusing to pay tax

By Ben Carlson
News staff

The owners of 35 businesses, including a number of well-known businesses in town, have been turned over to the county attorney's office for prosecution for refusing to pay a business license tax imposed by the fiscal court.

Code enforcement officer Doug Ingram presented the list of businesses to magistrates during last Tuesday morning's fiscal court meeting, saying those listed have been contacted but have not complied with the law that requires businesses operating in the county, and those that come to the county to do business and to pay a tax based on the number of people they employ.

The issue has been a sore spot for years for the fiscal court, which has struggled to enforce and collect the tax.

On Tuesday, Magistrate David Ruggles spoke out against the tax, which generates roughly $60,000 a year in revenue.

"I have never liked this," Ruggles said. "If you have the guts to start a business, why are we charging a business tax? To tax people to get up and go to work defeats the whole purpose of capitalism. "We can't be business friendly then charge a tax to do business."

Ruggles continued, saying that he has even considered doing away with the business license tax but is concerned about making up that revenue by increasing property taxes.

"I don't think it's fair to put it on [property owners], either," he said.

The tax was started in the 1980s and has been revised a number of times, the latest being in 2011 when magistrates attempted to simplify it.

The tax ranges from $50 a year for one employee to $300 for 101 employees or more. It exempts farmers, yard sales, vendors during fairs and the annual 127 Yard Sale, among others.

Those who do not pay the tax are subject to penalties that accrue over time and, after a year, doubles the cost of the tax.

The main problem with the tax comes with enforcement and collection. Ingram, the code enforcement officer, has a variety of duties including enforcing the tax, but does not collect it.

That job falls to County Attorney Jason Denny, who has no enforcement power but provides documents and collects the tax for those who come into his office to buy a license.

"It's the single biggest headache I have," Denny said during Tuesday's meeting, adding that his office keeps 5 percent of what is collected.

Ingram has discussed the tax numerous times during fiscal court meetings, including telling magistrates a couple of months ago that a check of businesses along US 127 Bypass revealed that nearly half of those checked do not have licenses.

Even among those that do, Ingram said some simply aren't honest when they apply about the number of employees they have.

"There's probably a 40 percent fraud rate," Ingram said. "They pay for a $50 license and say they have just one employee to get off our radar."

Another problem is that some businesses don't even know they need a county business license. During the meeting, Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway said businesses such as Hadawreck and the Goodwill store weren't aware they needed a license and now would have to pay a $600 penalty.

"These people say they're not aware of it and, the ones I've talked to, I believe it," Conway said. "I think we need to address these problems. We need to be business friendly and we need to do something about it."

Other problems arise from out-of-county companies that come here to do business, such as contractors.

Some will go to City Hall to buy a required city business license, and are not aware they also need a county license. Others will buy a county license one year and not renew if they don't have business in the county the next year.

Then there are professional services, such as attorneys, who come here to defend clients or transact business but generally don't purchase a business license to do so.

Tax collections among state's best

County Clerk Jason Denny reported that his office's annual sale of delinquent property taxes was a success.

Denny told magistrates that only $16,000 in tax bills remain unsold.

"That's awesome," said County Attorney Bobbi Jo Lewis. "That's among the best in the state."

"It's up there," replied Denny

Windows 'falling out' of courthouse

Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway told magistrates that he is working on getting prices to replace windows in the courthouse that were replaced in 1998.

He said the aluminum-clad windows that were installed are "falling out" because the wood around them is rotten.

He said a total of 16 windows need to be replaced, and that around 75 percent of the cost will be covered by the state's Administrative Office of the Courts.

mittee to come up with solutions.

Sixth District Magistrate Kenny Barnett volunteered, but was the only magistrate to do so. Conway asked Ruggles, but he declined.

He then asked Magistrate Buddy Sims, who said he would serve on the committee but only if appointed, which Conway did.

No meeting date had been set for the committee, but Conway said it would likely meeting sometime between Sept. 17 and 21.

That meeting will be open to the public.

As 9/11 comes and goes, student won't let memorial dream die

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

One year later, high school senior Blake Roach hasn't given up on his dream to construct a 9/11 memorial.

Some people thought he did. "They do ask me, 'what happened to it?'"

Roach said of his plans to commemorate the victims of the 9/11 attacks at the World Trade Center, the Pentagon and Flight 93. "At this point, to give up would be pointless."

One thing Roach has learned in a year spent fundraising for the 9/11 memorial — frustration.

"It's much, much harder than I thought," Roach, who has raised a total $1,500 for the memorial since 2011, said.

"The money's out there; you just have to find it."

Roach originally designed the memorial for a Student Technology Leadership Program (STLP) showcase competition, but making his design a reality has become an endeavor outside the walls of the high school classroom.

After appealing city and county government and other local businesses and residents (as well as supplying some of his own money), the 17-year-old only needs $600 to complete the Project Not Forgotten 9/11 memorial.

"Still, I wish it would have gotten done quicker," Roach said.

He's getting closer, having purchased materials for landscaping and in possession of a brass plaque honoring the lives of those who died in the World Trade Center towers, the Pentagon and those on board Flight 93.

The plaque will be inset into a 5-foot tower, a frame structure covered in mountain stone, a completely different design than the 10-foot twin granite towers Roach designed and wanted.

"As far as what we have as a plan now, I'm pleased with how it looks," Roach said.

High school teacher and STLP adviser Steven McKaig said he thinks it's great that Roach has pursued this project and hasn't given up.

"By having a visual reminder out there, you'll have something to rally around," McKaig said of the memorial, which is set to be constructed by the old school building on the Anderson County High School grounds.

Roach agreed.

"It'll show that someone had enough respect and honor to put something there," he said.

Once Roach has all of the funds and an estimate from the builder, he said, the high school will give him permission to start building.

But even after he constructs the memorial, it won't be enough to remember those who died on 9/11.

"Nothing will be enough to take back what happened," Roach said.

BROTHERS NOT SEEKING HEAD BUTTS

50 YEARS AGO
Sept. 13, 1962

Mountjoy's Crown Jewel placed first in the American Saddle Horse Breeders Futurity of Kentucky at the State Fair, winning $1,463.63.

The winning entry formerly owned and shown by Billy Mountjoy was sold in July to Blue Lake Stables of Newbury, Ohio. Mountjoy had nine weanlings out of the 134 nominated for the event, but showed only three.

Mountjoy's Crown Jewel was a half brother of the stallion Denmark Jewel, who was the fifth leading stallion in the United States. It was returned to the Mountjoy Stables to be trained.

Dena Carol Lentz, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Lentz of Louisville and granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. Boyd Caudill, was to appear on the Randy Atcher program on WHAS-TV.

Four from Anderson County left for their physical examinations at the Armed Forces Examination Station in Louisville, according to clerk of the board, Mrs. C.T. Cloyd.

They were: Darrell J. Darnell, Paul M. Chilton, Donovan C. Jeffries and Donald L. Ritchey.

Whole fryers were 28 cents a pound; turkeys were 39 cents a pound; and a 4-pound canned ham was $2.99 at A&P Supermarket.

You could get 2 pounds of bananas, plums or yams for 19 cents.

Campbell's tomato soup was 10 cents a can.

James Hays, 11, found another of those multi-eared corn formations. He is a son of A.C. Hays of Sinai.

James found this specimen in the family garden and it had no shuck on it at all.

Some multi-ears with shucks had been found by other people.

THE WAY WE WERE

A building permit was issued to Billy Huddleston for the construction of a new garage at property on the west side of South Main Street. Construction was estimated at $2,000.

Terry and Martin Peach, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Peach of Gee, suffered severe cuts of the forehead on Sunday, Sept. 2 while visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cornish at their home on Court Street. The boys were playing hide-and-seek and ran together, cutting their heads. They were treated at the Frankfort hospital where nine stitches were required to close each of the wounds.

Deaths

Ollie Burton Husband, 59, merchant and member of Pleasant Grove Baptist Church; Clay Drury, 75, retired farmer and husband of Bessie Smith Drury; Davis Marshall Bell, 39, plumber for the Neil Company of Lexington died after a three-month illness.

They were: Lucinda Ann Hammond, Melissa Ann Taylor, Carolyn Ann Spaulding, Billie Jo Shelton, Natalie Sue Cox, Connie Lynn Puckett, Tammy Charlene Godbey, Jan Allison Bowen,orgetta Pleasant, Deedee Smith, Lisa Ann Hanks, Jennifer Marie Durr, Nancy Ann Lane, Gloria Faye McGaughey, Tracy Drake and Becky Louise Raymond.

It was advertised that Tim Perry was working with Peak Insurance.

Norma J. Casey, daughter of Norma and Linda Casey, was at ROTC camp in Fort Riley, Kan.

Keith Franklin, his son, Dwayne, Mrs. Charlie Sutherland and Spanky the dog were pictured riding in a horse and wagon during the Labor Day parade at Alton.

Jennifer Smith was pictured with her poodle Frenchy all dressed up for the pet contest. Jennifer donned a beret and an old-fashioned dress while Frenchy was in a fancy dress with Jennifer pushing the dog in a doll stroller.

Construction of a Wal-Mart Discount City Store and IGA Supermarket were to begin on or before Oct. 1, according to Jimmy Freeman, co-developer of West Park Shopping Center. Work had been delayed for various reasons, but Freeman said "We're close to the point where we can start construction."

Deaths

Elizabeth Ross Hackney, employee of Dean and Shirk Thread Mill for 20 years and Ken Well Company for more than 20 years; James Andrew Hall, 51, Navy veteran and disabled chef manager.

15 YEARS AGO
Sept. 10, 1997

Carrie Searcy was awarded the 1997 Best Female Newcomer Award by the Muhlenberg Community Theatre. She is a daughter of Stanley and Linda Searcy and granddaughter of Charles and Thelma McDonald and Susan Searcy.

George Adams was "beet." His garden was so bountiful, he'd worked hard getting in all his produce. He said he had had a garden most of his 64 years, but the best one he ever had was this one when the bounty included a 2-pound beet. "I've never seen any this size before," he said. The retired truck driver and former resident of Indianapolis moved to Anderson County the year before because his wife, the former Jo McKee, was from this area.

Anderson County High School started its first girls' soccer team in 1997.

Deaths

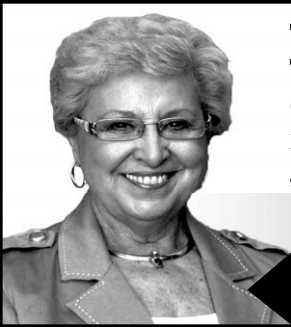

Julian Lynn Drury, 37, part-time carpenter and water-hauler, and his son, Ethan Conner Drury 4. They died as the result of a water tank accident. It was thought his brakes might have gone out when he was coming down Glensboro Hill.

featuring a $100 prize for first place, cake contest, quilt contest and photo contest. There will also be free music concerts featuring gospel, country, bluegrass and rock music all day Sept. 15. Inflatable rides and games will be available for $5 for all-day admission on Saturday.

There will also be a talent show with a $200 first place prize if five or more contestants enter, or a $50 first place prize if fewer than five enter. A cruise-in with DJ Rick Johnson on Friday night will also be held. For more information about the festival, visit www.salvisaruritan.org.

High school to host parent connection night

Anderson County High School invites all parents to attend the first trimester Parent Connection Night on Sept. 13 from 5:30-8 p.m.

According to a press release from the high school, "The purpose of this event is to inform parents of the resources available to them and their student(s) and to encourage collaboration with our faculty."

Highlights of the evening will include parent/teacher conferences; parents who would like to meet with specific teachers should contact the guidance office. A Student Services/Testing fair will be set-up in gym C, where staff will be available to share resources regarding college/career readiness and more. Student Services staff will host Senior Parent Night in the auditorium at 6:30 p.m. Counselors will review information and provide packets to parents on college preparation. Additionally, there will be performances throughout the evening by the men's choir, band, and an arts display. The Lady Bearcat volleyball team will also be in action.

Farmdale Baptist welcomes associate pastor

From staff reports

Farmdale Baptist Church voted in its business meeting Sept. 5 to call Brian Owens as its associate pastor with Children and Youth Emphasis.

Owens is from Lawrenceburg, and is currently pursuing a Master of Divinity in Christian Ministry from the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Before coming to Farmdale, Owens served as pastor of churches in Shelby and Martin counties. He and his wife, Melinda, are the parents of five children. Owens will oversee Farmdale's children ministries and lead the youth ministry.

speaker, Emily Askew, assistant professor at Lexington Theological Seminary.

The retreat will also offer a book swap, asking participants to bring and exchange books to "share books you have been blessed by."

Tickets are $15 each, with lunch and childcare provided.

Event organizers also ask that participants bring canned goods to donate to the Open Hands food pantry. For more information, contact 502-859-2592 or visit www.lburgfcc.org.

New Hope Baptist announces upcoming events

New Hope Baptist church invites the community to join the church's volleyball team, which plays at Falling Springs.

See Sheila Calvert for details.

Awana has begun at New Hope for 2-year-olds through fifth grade. This is a children's ministry that meets Sundays at 6 p.m. Each week children learn Bible stories, memorize scripture and play games that reinforce the lesson. The children also have the opportunity to earn badges as they achieve the milestones before them.

The Eliza Broadus Offering has begun. The church will be collecting a special offering throughout September. New Hope's senior pastor, the Rev. J. Wesley Noss, and the youth pastor, the Rev. Chris Harper, are available to assist in any prayer needs at 873-1707. New Hope Baptist is located at 3825 Tyrone Pike in Versailles.

Quartet Convention starts Sunday in Louisville

The 55th annual National Quartet Convention is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 9 through Saturday, Sept. 15 at the Kentucky Fair & Expo Center in Louisville.

Many of the most popular names in Southern gospel music will be featured throughout the seven-day event during afternoon and evening concerts, including artists such as The Gaither Vocal Band, The Hoppers, The Kingdom Heirs, Gold City, Greater Vision, The Booth Brothers, The Triumphant Quartet, Legacy Five, Karen Peck & New River, The Isaacs and dozens of others, organizers said.

For more information, call 800-846-8499 or visit www.nqconline.com.

St. Lawrence Catholic Church offers financial classes

St. Lawrence Catholic Church in Lawrenceburg will offer a class on finances beginning Sept. 20 at 6:30 p.m.

The nine-week course will meet once each week during which a different lesson will be taught via DVD followed by a small-group discussion and lessons include budgeting, relationships and money, getting out of debt, saving for emergencies and investing.

Fees for the course is $100 for the textbooks, workbooks and other materials.

St. Lawrence Catholic Church is located at 120 North Gatewood St., Lawrenceburg. For more information or to register, contact Patricia Miller at 502-839-6381.

GOD AND THE UNIVERSE

No one doubts that the universe exist, it is self-evident. To deny that the universe does not exist would be to show our total ignorance. But, where did this universe come from? Something cannot come from nothing. Every effect must have a cause.

1. Every tree, plant, etc. came from a seed, which in turn came from another tree, plant etc., which came from another seed etc.
2. Every animal came from parent stock.
3. Every person comes from parent stock.
4. All the things that we observe in the universe was caused by something or someone who brought the effect about.

Every atheist has to accept the above obvious facts. The question revolves itself into this proposition: since the universe exists, and something cannot come from nothing, then something or someone has always existed. The atheist says that matter is eternal, that all live things came from dead matter. The child of God on the other hand, affirms that mind (God) has always existed, and He is the originator and planner of the universe.

There is no doubt that MIND is greater than matter. Mind knows; matter is the object known. Mind moves, direct, and modifies matter. By the mind, lightening is chained, the power of steam is controlled and even the strength of a horse can be subdued.

Seems more logical to accept the Biblical truth that "In the Beginning God (Eternal Intelligence) created the heavens and the earth" than to accept "In the beginning, matter (dead, senseless, passive) created the heavens and the earth."

STORY TIME WITH A CONGRESSMAN

Congressman Ben Chandler (D-Versailles) reads to four children last Thursday at the Anderson County Health Department as part of the Reach Out and Read School Readiness Program. The health department participates in the program, which is designed to prepare children to succeed in school by training doctors and nurses to advise parents about the importance of reading aloud and giving books to children. 'I think it's a wonderful program,' Chandler said. Shown, from left, are Cameron Proctor, Laken Smith, Isaiah Proctor and Charles Bowen.

Guard's mission greater than Border Bowl

Parked just off to my right was a small Blackhawk helicopter. On the drive back to Hangar 2, I had passed several other machines of warfare. Sitting next to me was a guy in camouflaged fatigues. We shook hands and exchanged some pleasantries before he took out his note pad. It was covered in camouflaged fabric too. I had driven over to Boone National Guard Center in Frankfort for a press conference promoting the Border Bowl football game last Wednesday. I went over expecting to see some old friends in the media – which I did – and have a chance to talk with Anderson County resident Freddie Maggard, the former University of Kentucky quarterback who now serves as Community Relations and Outreach Director for the National Guard.

It was a press conference about high school football players, no question. The presence of four of the first 12 selected for the Kentucky All-Stars – Clay County's Jacob Hyde, Michael Jones of Danville and Franklin County's Ryan Timmons and Logan Woodside – served to remind us they were the focus of the gathering. They will be part of the team that is scheduled to take on the Tennessee All-Stars on Jan. 12 at the University of the Cumberland in Williamsburg.

Another 38 will be selected at the end of the season as they will try to wrest the Howitzer Trophy from Tennessee, which has won four of the first five events.

"This is a way for the National Guard to provide opportunities for high school athletes from Kentucky and Tennessee," said Maggard, who noted that the game is a joint effort with the Tennessee National Guard. "The kids can get some exposure for college."

Of course, in sponsoring the game, the National Guard also gets plenty of good will showing the benefits of serving one's country. The game already draws close to 5,000 fans. "That is huge," Maggard said.

But during the press conference, I must admit my mind wandered. It wasn't because I was bored or disinterested. What the National Guard is doing with the Border Bowl is wonderful.

It was because on the way to Hangar 2, I drove past the USP&FO building where my father, Chief Warrant Officer Allen Herndon, had worked for as long as I can remember until the day he retired.

Things are so much different now. Back when I was a teenager, I could drive right in whenever I wanted. Last Wednesday, I was stopped at the entrance, signed in and, along with several other media types, escorted back to Hangar 2.

It's understandable. The world is a far different place than it was in the 1970s. Tuesday, we marked the 11th anniversary of the day things changed dramatically. For the National Guard, the perception transformed from the weekend warrior who got some extra cash and perhaps a college education to one of being in harm's way at a moment's notice.

Hopefully, none of us will ever forget the sacrifice or the risk for which they volunteered.

While others talked with the four football players sitting at the front table, I sought out the young MP, Sgt. Bracken Napier, featured in the Guard's "Be The Elite" promotion. I also chatted with another Guardsman who had just returned from Iraq last December. I was honored.

Both knew my son-in-law, Capt. Charles Hill, who had also been in Iraq last year, getting home not long before his first child, my granddaughter, was born.

The young men who have been selected for the Border Bowl should be congratulated. They have achieved one of the top honors around for a high school football player. Hopefully they will bring that Howitzer Trophy back to the Bluegrass.

Yet, while the Border Bowl is a great undertaking by the men and women of the National Guard, what they do every day is even greater. All I can say is "Thank you."

Mercer looks to stop Anderson series string

Titans boast one of state's best backs

By John Herndon

Even though Anderson County has won – and won handily – every time the Bearcats have gone up against Mercer County since the once-heated rivalry resumed, Friday's showdown in Harrodsburg could be Anderson's toughest test yet before embarking on its road through district play.

Like Anderson, Mercer is 2-1 after slipping past West Jessamine, 31-28, on Friday night. Mercer got a safety and a touchdown inside the final 1:37 to pull out the victory.

Suffice it to say that no one expects an outcome like the three previous years, which saw the Bearcats win by an average of 24 points.

Last year, Anderson did not play particularly well, yet still won 28-6. The Titans' Travis Hooper returned the opening kickoff for a touchdown, but Seth Carmichael ran for a score and threw a pair of touchdown passes to Spencer Ruggles to lead the Bearcats.

Anderson coach Mark Peach says the Bearcats expect a very tough game. So do the computer rankings that appear in both the Lexington Herald-Leader and Courier-Journal. Both have the Bearcats favored by just over a touchdown.

The main reason for the change is the hiring of Pardue led Boyle for three seasons, compiling a 22-15 record, but never advanced past the regional final. He left coaching in the high school ranks and

Anderson falls to mountain power in SMASH final

By John Herndon

The inaugural Anderson County SMASH Tournament really was a smashing success.

Ten volleyball teams from around Kentucky competed for the big trophy with Allen Central, from eastern Kentucky's 15th Region, capturing the title, defeating the host Lady Bearcats, 25-15 and 25-12, in the gold division final on Saturday evening.

Bardstown won the silver championship with Western Hills taking bronze and Monticello winning copper.

It was Anderson's best showing in a tournament in recent memory. The Lady Bearcats now stand at 12-9 heading into the home stretch with district tournament play beginning on Oct. 8.

"Typically, we don't perform well in tournaments," Anderson coach Courtney DeLong said. "I'm not sure if it's because there are so many games being played in a weekend or if mentally, we psych ourselves out. This past weekend was different though. I'm assuming it was because the ladies were in the comfort of their own gym and were able to relax a little more than when traveling."

Whatever the reason,

Anderson won four tournament matches, running its winning streak to five, before meeting Allen Central in the finals.

Allen Central improved to 17-3 and has won 12 straight matches with the championship.

DeLong was puzzled as to why her team struggled in the final. "I'm not sure if it was due to the long day of playing or if they were intimidated, but we definitely could have competed

Soccer player's career ends with another concussion

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Head injuries impacted an Anderson County High School graduate again two weeks ago as Kemper Rogers saw her soccer playing career come to an end.

"One of my teammates was crossing the ball and my head just so happened to be in the way," Rogers said. "It knocked me to the ground and knocked my head gear off my head. I immediately had vision problems and I knew it was bad."

Rogers, and her father, Daniel Rogers, were recently featured in story in The Anderson News. They contacted the paper after a series of stories on some of the dangers of head injuries and precautions that local schools and teams were taking to prevent them.

Kemper Rogers suffered her first concussion while playing in a showcase during the spring semester of her senior year. She suffered another while playing at Midway last year and began wearing a protective headgear. Doctors had told her a third one could potentially be fatal.

However, two weeks ago, the protective device was not enough to prevent the concussion, but she did survive another brain injury.

The following day, Kemper saw Dr. James Jagger at the University of Kentucky when she learned her days of playing competitive soccer were over.

"It felt like my heart was ripped out," she said. "I had known from the night before that he was going to tell me I couldn't play soccer anymore but I just couldn't accept it."

"Hearing that I could not play the sport I had been playing all my life was detrimental. I mean that's what I was going to school for. I cried for a long time and really just couldn't believe it. It's been two weeks and I'm doing a lot better with it now, it is still hard though."

K. Rogers

D. Rogers

Daniel Rogers was also affected. "I was sad, heartbroken," he said. "It's tough to know your child will never get to do what they enjoy in life ever again."

"I worry about some side effects or potential lasting effects from it, but I think she will be fine and move on. Emotionally, she's in bad shape because a huge part of her identity has been taken from her."

Daniel's other daughter, Alyssa, is currently the starting goalkeeper for the Anderson County High School team. He said she will continue to play. The decision on whether Alyssa will wear a headgear will be his daughter's. "I won't force her to as a preventive measure, but should she ever want to, I would get it for her immediately."

Kemper Rogers' playing career is over, but she will remain around the game, working with the Bluegrass Soccer Club in Versailles and officiating games. "I still plan to coach and referee," Kemper said. "I love the game too much to not be a part of it."

Jack Wells Memorial Scramble set
The second annual Jack Wells Memorial Golf Classic will be held at Wild Turkey Trace Golf Course in Lawrenceburg on Saturday, Sept. 22.

The scramble is designed to raise money for the Father Charles McDonald Scholarship Fund and other outreach programs of St. Lawrence Catholic Church. The scramble will tee off at 8:30 a.m. with a shotgun start.

The cost is $60 per player. Four-somes can play for $200. The cost of the scramble includes 18 holes of golf along with a cart.

During the day, there will also be a 50-50 putting contest, mulligans, hole prizes and other entertainment and prizes.

Golfers can start the day with a continental breakfast from 7-8 a.m. Lunch and cold drinks will also be available.

Organizers of the scramble invite non-golfers to sponsor a hole or sponsor youth golfers. For more information, contact Bill White at 839-1144.

Anderson County Sportman's Club taking applications for youth hunt

From staff reports

The Anderson County Sportsman's Club will sponsor its second annual Youth Deer Hunt on Oct. 13-14, offering hunters ages 10 to 15 the chance to harvest a deer.

Applications are now being accepted for youth from Anderson, Mercer, Woodford, Franklin and Jessamine counties, organizers said. (Use application in this article to apply).

Applicants are asked to include a short paragraph on why they are applying and why they are good candidates to be selected.

The event is for youths who do not have the opportunity or someone to take them hunting.

"A lot of the young people that take part in this hunt have never been hunting or even shot a gun," said David Goodlett, an officer with the state's Fish and Wildlife division.

As part of the event, all youth are given proper training in safety, shot placement, hunter education, and general hunting knowledge by experienced hunting guides.

The hunt will be afternoons only and we will start each day off with lunch for all.

Young hunters will be going hunting one on one with experienced guides on private property. There is no charge for this event and everything is provided, organizers said.

About 50 percent of last year's participants harvested a deer.

"It is truly a joy to be involved in this event and recognize the joy the youth receive as they experience hunting and the outdoors," Goodlett said.

"This is a great opportunity for the youth to experience an enjoyable and memorable outdoor experience while hunting deer."

All applications must be turned in by Sept. 21. Mail them to David Goodlett, 129 Canterbury St., Lawrenceburg, KY 40342; Jason Wells, 1047 Bond Lane, Lawrenceburg, KY 40342; or Phillip Crane, 4390 Bardstown Road, Lawrenceburg, KY 40342.

For more information call Goodlett at 502-604-3731; Wells at 502-517-6444; or Crane at 502-604-1884.

Applications are also available at the middle and high schools.

Second weekend brings smarter doves, tough shooting

By Lee McClellan

Ky. Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources

After downing a limit of doves at the opening day dove hunt, you feel confident you'll get another limit this coming weekend.

After setting up in a favorite spot near a dead tree in the early afternoon, you wait for groups of doves to come into the field. Instead, a swift gray bird comes in from behind at a 45-degree angle. You raise your barrel, swing and fire, not puffing a single feather on the dove that quickly swerves away, out of danger.

After an hour of firing three shots and missing every bird, you wonder if you accidentally bent the barrel of your shotgun.

Those slow, naive doves of opening weekend are gone until Sept. 1, 2013. Trying to hit hunted, smart doves are some of the hardest shots in wingshooting, but also the most rewarding.

Many dove hunters just aim and shoot. You can hit the easy birds on opening day with this approach, but you must learn the proper techniques of swinging a shotgun to connect on the hardest dove shots or waterfowl. Two main methods dominate shotgunning: the swing-through and the sustained lead.

"I've shot thousands of shells and hit many birds and I use the swing-through method," said Rocky Pritchert, migratory bird coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "I swing the barrel, blot out the bird and pull the trigger."

An aid in remembering the sequence for the swing-through method is "butt, belly, beak, bang."

The sustained lead method works well for many shooters. In the swing-through method, it is really easy for a shooter to stop swinging the shotgun once they hear the shot and feel the recoil.

They will miss the bird behind.

"Think of your sight as a paint brush," said James Charas, of Lexington. "Swing through and paint across the bird as you pull the trigger. This will ensure good follow through because you are thinking about moving the barrel as you pull the trigger."

With the sustained lead, you start the barrel out in front of the bird and keep swinging. Imagine the bird smoking a long cigar and you are trying to shoot the ash off it.

If you set up under a dead tree and birds come in high overhead, the swing-through methods works well. Start the gun barrel at the dove's tail feathers and swing through the bird. Pull the trigger when the barrel blocks the bird.

Many dove hunters can't hit birds coming in fast at a 45-degree angle, or quartering, into the field. The tendency is to shoot over or behind the dove. Aim for the inside wing tip and don't cover the bird with the barrel. Keep the bird over the gun barrel and keep swinging.

Some wingshooters struggle with a dove flying straight away from them, but this is one of the easiest shots in the dove field. "Blot out the dove with the barrel and shoot," Pritchert said.

As the days shorten and nights lengthen in fall, long passing shots are often the rule.

"Because doves are so small and fast, when they are at long range most hunters overestimate how far away the birds are," Pritchert said. "Most shots are less than 40 yards, even though they look much longer."

Pritchert recommends a modified choke for these long shots. "Choke science has come a long way," Pritchert said. "I still use modified for these shots, it gives the shooter more room for error."

Treat long pass shots like crossing shots, but with a longer lead on the dove. These shots demand a high quality load.

Spend the extra dollars and get a quality heavy field load. The cheap loads have just 1-ounce of shot in 12-gauge while heavy field loads hold 1 1/4-ounces. The difference amounts to 87 more pellets of 7 1/2 size shot in the 1 1/4-ounce load versus the 1-ounce load.

The extra shot also reduces the chances of crippling birds.

Wear head-to-toe camouflage for these challenging hunts. Sunlight reflects off the skin oils of your face as you tilt your head up for a shot, making the doves flare away from you. Some dove hunters wear mesh camouflage face masks for further concealment.

The dove hunting season doesn't end with Labor Day, but the shooting grows more difficult as the leaves change. Use these techniques to extend the season and hit some of the most difficult dove shots.

Anderson had been impressive in its opener against Western Hills, taking control late in game one, then cruising in the second.

(While high school volleyball went to a best 3-of-5 format this year, the tournament was played under the old system that used a best 2-of-3.)

The Lady Bearcats came back to whip Danville 25-10, 25-16 in the second game Friday, then pulled out a tough 25-13, 25-23 win over Thomas Nelson, a new high school in Bardstown. “I think the Thomas Nelson game was a great one for us,” DeLong said. “(Assistant coach Bob) Hardin gave constructive feedback to the team during timeouts and each person took the feedback to heart. It’s not often that we can get everyone on the same page and they all were that morning.”

DeLong said the Lady Bearcats typically are not at the top of their game in morning matches. “It was just surprising to see them come out as energetic as they were.”

The Lady Bearcats pulled out a tough three-set win over Bardstown in the semi-final.

“This was the best tournament showing they have had so far and Coach Hardin and I are very proud of them,” DeLong said.

“Their progression throughout the tournament was exactly what we expected and even though in some games they would start to back down, they pulled through in the end.”

DeLong said the program’s first tournament was a success because of the work of many different people.

“Coach Hardin worked hard to get everything squared away with the tournament and the brackets,” she said.

DeLong also noted that many volleyball parents and local businesses teamed up to make the event a success.

“Everything ran smoothly and we couldn’t be happier with the way things ended up,” she said.

Anderson comes back to beat Franklin

The Lady Bearcats rallied after being down 2-1 to beat visiting Franklin County in five games (21-25, 25-12, 20-25, 25-18, 15-8) in what might have been the Lady Bearcats’ most impressive comeback in a long time.

“The Franklin game was the first time the team has come back like that this year,” DeLong said.

“It’s crazy, but it seemed as if all of the stars aligned and each player was on the same page. Each person was willing to leave it all out on the court and play to their full potential.”

DeLong said the Lady Bearcats have begun to see they have a chance to make 2012 a special year. “I think it’s finally starting to click with each player individually and the team as a whole that their potential far exceeds what they ever thought it could be.”

The Lady Bearcats can make a major impact on the 30th District standings this week.

The Lady Bearcats were to have hosted Spencer County Tuesday night after press time, then host Collins on Thursday, Sept. 13. Next Thursday, Sept. 20, Anderson will play at Shelby County.

Those three matches will determine Anderson’s seed in the district tournament.

GIRLS' SOCCER

Despite mounting injuries, Lady Bearcats get two wins

Key district match at Spencer County set for Monday

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Somehow, Anderson County is getting the job done in girls' high school soccer. Injuries keep mounting for the Lady Bearcats, sidelining two more starters to a team already thin because of a plethora of hurts, but they registered two wins last week to move above .500.

The Lady Bearcats routed Owen County, 5-2, in a match not nearly as close as the score indicates, and took a 3-2 decision on the road at Madison Central in what might be their most impressive win of the year.

A district matchup with Shelby County, scheduled for last Wednesday, was postponed because of storms in the area. No makeup date had been set at press time.

Thursday, however, the Lady Bearcats showed why their record, now 5-4-1, is deceptive. Allie Johnson, Makenzie Cann and Madeline Wilson all scored as the Lady Bearcats overcame an early 1-0 deficit to defeat a team that was 9-1 going into the contest.

"Their only loss was to West Jessamine, a Top 15 team," Anderson coach Jason Earnest said. "After watching our JV team lose 5-0, I wasn't sure what we were in for, but I do know my team has been improving throughout the year. We really seemed ready to play."

Anderson overcame an own goal that gave Madison Central a 1-0 lead just three minutes into the contest. The Lady Bearcats tied things in the 30th minute when Johnson countered a Madison Central attack, took the ball drove the ball into the net.

"Allie made a tremendous touch on the ball and she was off to the races," Earnest said. "She took a touch away from pressure, then buried a shot past the keeper."

Johnson, however, gave the Lady Bearcats a scare with 16:30 to play when she and a Madison Central defender collided and Johnson's head and upper back hit the ground. She left the field in an ambulance, but suffered no broken bones and returned home that night. Johnson missed the remainder of that game and the Owen County game.

The date of her return was unclear at press time.

What was clear was that Johnson's injury ignited a fire under the Lady Bearcats, according to Earnest.

"This was a scary moment for us, as Allie hit the ground so hard," he said. "I knew she was hurt but right away, I felt better that she was moving her hands, arms, legs and feet ... The team rallied around Allie's injury."

Anderson took the lead three minutes later when Cann delivered what Earnest called a "fantastic half-volley" into the net off a corner kick from Andrea Melanson to make it 2-1.

After just another three minutes, the Lady Bearcats got some insurance when Madeline Wilson drilled a penalty kick.

Madison Central scored two minutes later, but Anderson held on for the final eight minutes.

"The game was really back-and-forth," Earnest said. "We probably had the better possession but not by a lot."

"They were a very dangerous attacking team. They had a nice offensive scheme that we took awhile to adjust to."

Saturday, the Lady Bearcats rolled to a win at Owen County, a former district foe, despite being without a number of players with injuries.

Anderson blitzed to a 4-0 halftime lead as the Lady Bearcats dominated possession.

Yet Earnest said, "Owen County played a very nice offside trap, catching us offside about 15 times. It was frustrating."

Anderson scored when Carrie Isaacs scored on a pass from Lindsay Chelf midway through the first half. Cann followed with another goal off a pass from Sandra Nava and Brittany Frith found the net on a rebound from her own penalty kick.

Anna Cornish also scored before the break and Autumn Miller found the net in the second half.

The Lady Bearcats suffered another injury when Niki Curtsinger took a hard hit and will likely be out of action as the Lady Bearcats play in the Boyle County Invitational Tournament this week.

Anderson will have a very important district match Monday, Sept. 17, at Spencer County. The Lady Bearcats need a win to stay at the top of the 30th District standings.

had been on the staff at Campbellsville University before heading to Mercer, where he is the third coach in three years.

"They have tried to model things like Boyle County," Peach said. "That is a pretty good blueprint. They have a sound scheme on offense, defense and special teams."

Mercer boasts one of the state's best running backs in senior James Johnson, who was ninth in rushing statewide in statistics released by the Kentucky High School Athletic Association last week. Johnson had put up 340 yards on the ground in Mercer's first two games. He ran for 106 yards in 21 carries and scored the game-winner, an 11-yard run with 41 seconds left, against West Jessamine according to statistics that appeared in the Danville Advocate-Messenger.

"He is a very dynamic runner," Peach said of Johnson.

"He can run with power, he can be elusive and if he gets to the corner, he has tremendous speed."

Quarterback Austin Sparrow, a sophomore, had thrown for 142 yards a game through the first two contests. He hit on 12-of-26 passes for 184 yards but had three interceptions against West Jessamine. Sparrow is the son of former Anderson County girls' basketball coach Casey Sparrow and his wife, Lisa.

The schools have a long rivalry, with Anderson leading the series 22-13. The Bearcats have won the last three, which are the only ones between the schools since Mercer and Harrodsburg merged in 2006, when the Titans won the state Class 2A title.

Before taking a brief hiatus in the series, Mercer had won five straight from 2001 until 2005. The first meeting between the schools came in 1963 and they played every year from 1977 until 1996.

Anderson also played Harrodsburg every year from 1949, when Anderson was formed, until 1986. Harrodsburg won that series 21-13-2. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

ABSOLUTE ESTATE AUCTION

of the Home of Rachel Lathrem
229 Gailane, Lawrenceburg, KY
Saturday, Sept. 15, 2012, at 1 p.m.

Looking for a home with location, location, location which is close to the shopping centers, schools and churches, and where you can decorate to suite your taste, then you will want to make plans to attend this auction. This home features an entry hall, 3 bedrooms, 2.5 baths, and living room, large den/kitchen with cooking range, refrigerator and pantry. Basement partially finished. Fenced back yard, 2 car garage and a storage building. You will be surprised at the living space in this home.

NOTICE: This home was built prior to 1978 and has the potential of having lead base paint. The lead paint inspection and all other inspections are to be performed prior to the auction. Lead paint waiver will become part of the auction purchase contract if not performed prior to the auction.

TERMS ON THE REAL ESTATE: Purchaser will be required to deposit 10% of the purchase price the day of the auction and the balance will be due with the deed on or before October 15, 2012. Property taxes will be prorated from Jan 1, 2012 to date of deed. A 7% Buyers Premium will be added to the final bid to determine the sale price of the property. The property is being SOLD AS IS with no warranties expressed or implied by the seller or Birdwhistell Realty & Auction Company. Announcements the day of the auction of the home or personal property will take precedence over verbal or printed information.

4 1/2 to 1

61% of Kentuckians say newspapers are their primary source for advertising information.

13% mentioned another medium.

That's a 4 1/2-to-1 advantage for newspapers.

If it were a basketball game, you'd be leaving at half-time.

This fact brought to you by the Kentucky Press Association and its 162 member newspapers.

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE
In order to comply with the orders of the Anderson Circuit Court, the Master Commissioner will sell the property described in the following actions on Thursday, September 27, 2012, at 11:00 a.m. in the Anderson County Courthouse, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky.
The property shall be sold to raise the amounts hereinafter set forth, together with interest and the costs of this action, and upon the following terms and conditions (unless otherwise indicated):
(1) At the time of the sale, the successful bidder shall either pay cash or make a deposit of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days. In the event the successful bidder elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish surety acceptable to the Master Commissioner. The bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest and the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum until paid in full.
(2) PLEASE NOTE: The real estate SHALL BE SOLD SUBJECT TO ALL city, state, county, and school real estate taxes, whether current or delinquent.

(3) Where the real estate has insurable improvements, the successful bidder shall, at his or her own expense, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on said improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, to the extent of the Court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, at a minimum, with a loss clause payable to the Master Commissioner or the appropriate Plaintiff. Failure of the successful bidder to effect such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the successful bidder's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, the Plaintiff(s) to effect said insurance and furnish the policy or evidence thereof to the Master Commissioner, if it so desires, and the premium thereon or the property portion thereof shall be charged to the successful bidder as the successful bidder's cost.
(4) The property shall otherwise be sold free and clear of any right, title and interest of all parties to the action and of their liens and encumbrances thereon excepting easements and restrictions of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office, and such right of redemption which may exist in favor of the United States of America or the Defendant(s), and any matters disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property.

2012 Tire Amnesty Program

Thursday, Sept. 20 – Saturday, Sept. 22

8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

State Highway Barn, 1631 Harrodsburg Road

Anderson County Solid Waste, in cooperation with the Environmental and Public Protection Cabinet (EPPC), will be holding a 2012 Waste Tire Amnesty Program for free disposal of an unlimited number of tires.

We will be accepting tires on and off the rims, but we cannot accept foam-filled tires, off-road construction equipment tires, solid tires with pressed-on rims, or tires filled with antifreeze or calcium.

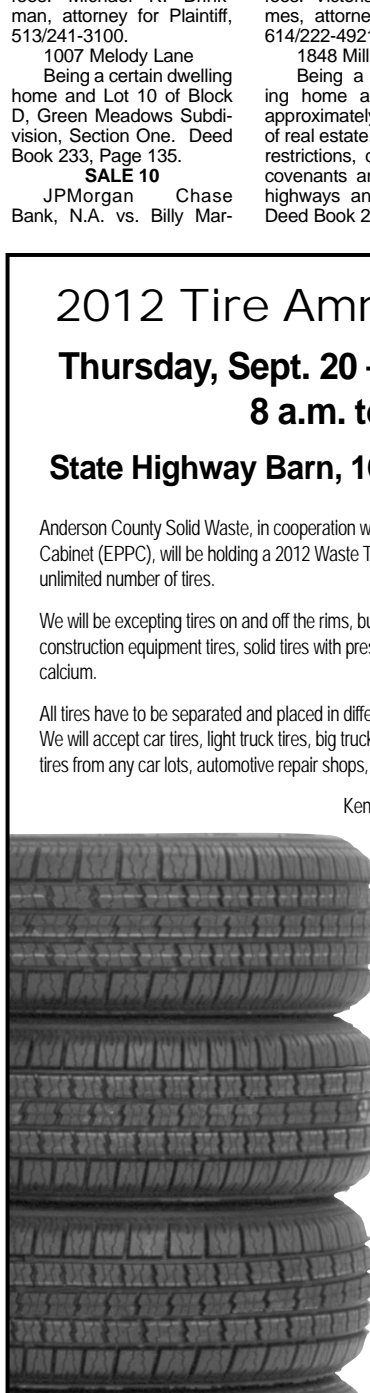

All tires have to be separated and placed in different piles (tires with rims and tires without rims). We will accept car tires, light truck tires, big truck tires and agricultural tires. We will not accept tires from any car lots, automotive repair shops, or any tire dealers/retailers.

Kentucky citizens can take tires to any county in the state of Kentucky they choose as long as that County's Tire Amnesty Program is going on.

The tires we accumulate during our Tire Amnesty Program will be removed and hauled off within ten (10) days after the program has ended. We will be keeping logs of who brought tires, how many they brought and when they brought them, so we can see how many Anderson County brought in alone.

We have prepared a site at the State Highway Barn (State Maintenance Barn) at 1631 Harrodsburg Road for our Tire Amnesty Program to make sure that we have the hands we need to make sure the program is a success.

Our Tire Amnesty Program will be held on Thursday, Sept. 20, Friday, Sept. 21, and Saturday, Sept. 22. Hours for drop off will be from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.
